this city. The latter had his friends vote for, and thus nominate Ambler for Congress, and Schneider was made the Grant and Colfax elector for the district. It was a very pretty ticklene-and-l'll-tickle-you arrangement. Of course in the event of Grant's election, these two worthies would have the control of all the general government patronage in the district. Their particular favorites would be the collectors, assessors, postmasters, &c .-As we expect, however, to elect that distinguished statesman of New York, Horatio Seymour, Republicans need not trouble themselves about those positions. We merely wished to show that the whisky ring in Washington is not the only ring in the country. The Ambler-Schneider (not whisky) ring in this district has, so far, worked charmingly.

Let our friends remember that though in a strong Republican district. we may not be without hope.
